Dan Moceri is co-founder and executive chairman of Convergint in Schaumburg, Illinois, a global systems integrator organization with 9,000 plus employees located in 200 offices throughout the world. He is also a partner in Moceri + Roszak, a Chicago-based real estate developer. Dan graduated from Milwaukee School of Engineering (MSOE) with a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering and earned his master's degree in management from Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois.

Founded on a set of ten values and beliefs that drive the company's culture and set the industry standard for customer satisfaction, Convergint has been named to the Companies that Care Honor Roll each year since 2004 and has received numerous awards and industry recognition. Convergint is recognized as the world's largest security integrator.   Prior to starting Convergint, Moceri was the president of Siemens Building Technologies Security Division for North America. He was the recipient of the Ernst & Young Entrepreneur of the Year for Technology in the Midwest Region.

Dan is a member of the MSOE Board of Regents and was the Board of Regents Chairman from 2018 – 2021 and is currently a member of the Executive Committee. Dan provides scholarships for MSOE undergraduate engineer students. He sits on numerous board and advisory seats including Convergint, the US Chamber of Commerce Foundation, and non-profit Aspire of Chicago. Along with his family, they created the Moceri Family Foundation that supports various non-profits centered around Women and children initiatives, healthcare, hunger, and homeless. Dan enjoys traveling, boating, cycling, and spending time with his three adult children and five grandchildren.